

Lebanon has the largest ski resort in the Middle East. Faraya is a village located 46 kilometers north of Beirut about an hour's drive. Its average elevation is 1,850 meters above sea level. Enjoy alpine skiing, skate skiing, snowboarding & snowmobiling. The ski season kicks in from December to March. The area is known for its good-quality snow, powdery on the surface and firm underneath. The slopes face north, which shields the snow from the sun.

5* Intercontinental Mzaar Hotel

This luxury resort is located right next to the slopes. Ski direct from the resort with access to an 80km trail. This resort features a heated indoor pool, cinema and spa. Equipped with a team of winter sports professionals, ski schools and snow-grooming gears for the steepest slopes, to secure a fun skiing adventure for both advanced & beginners.
